REVENUE MEASURE
PROGRESS IS SLOWLITTLE HOPE HELD
FOR A FINAL VOTE
ON NEXT TUESDAY

Bill Will Be Held Open
if Vote Appears to Be Possible

AMENDMENTS
TAKE MUCH TIME

Longworth Is Optimistic
That Break Is Near
Among Insurgents

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Further changes in the revenue bill, brought by the democrats and supported by some republican leaders, gained slow progress in the house today, with the spirited debate that has marked its consideration all the while.

As a result of delays encountered yesterday, little hope was held by Chairman Green, of the ways and means committee, in charge of the measure for the republicans, that it could be brought up for a final vote
Tuesday, as had been planned.

It was decided, however, to hold the measure open before the house without interruption, if a vote appears possible, a little later in the week.

Considerable time has been spent on an amendment which was approved by a vote of democrats and republican insurgents to open tax returns to special congressional committees.

Other amendments adopted made the corporation tax returns available to state officers, upon request of the governor.

Representative Longworth, republican leader, continued optimistic that a definite break in the ranks of the 17 republicans who voted for the Garner income rates would develop.

Mother and Three Children Are Dead

(Associated Press)
WATERLIET, N. Y., Feb. 23—A mother and three small children were asphyxiated and thirteen other persons suffered from the effects of inhaling gas, which leaked from a street
main broken by frost today.

The dead are: Mrs. Joseph Prenci and her three children, John, Clara and Daniel.

A canary, feebly struggling in its cage, gave one of the victims the first intimation of trouble.

Former Governor James M. Cox, of Dayton, O., has announced that he is again a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Presi-

FIRE OFFICIAL DIES
AS STORE BURNS

(Associated Press)
NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23—Jules Ponjol, assistant fire chief, was suffocated when trapped in the warehouse of the Marks-Isaacs company, Canal street department store, which was destroyed by an early morning blaze.

The fireman was in the building
when the floors and walls collapsed.
His body was removed after the fire
had been extinguished.

Five other firemen, two of whom
may die, were hurt by falling walls.
They were removed to a hospital.

Relief parties were digging in the smoldering embers today in search of other firemen who were believed to have been caught under the falling walls.

The warehouse was separated from the department store by a narrow alley connected by a bridge. In the building was stored surplus merchandise.

The building and its contents was said to be a total loss. The department store was damaged by fire and smoke.

The origin of the fire has not been determined. It was discovered at 4:30 a. m., at which time it had made considerable headway. The blaze originated in the second floor of the brick building and within a few hours
the structure collapsed. The warehouse faced Royal street and the lower floor was occupied by the Acme saloon.

speak at the Salvation Army hall, 117
West Church street, Monday, February 25. Staff Captain Story has recently taken charge of the Army as divisional commander, having charge of all field operations of the Army
in Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, and northwest Florida. Staff Captain Story will be accompanied by Commandant W. M. Bouterage, general secretary for the division.

In addition to conducting services
as announced there will be a general inspection and auditing of books.

CENTRAL DEFEATED
IN DOUBLE-HEADER

Central High was defeated in both ends of a double header Friday night at the Central gymnasium when the girls cage outfit lost to Morgan County high girls 10-3 and the boys team lost to Falkville athletic club in a very close contest 31-28.

The Central boys jumped to the lead at the start but were trailing 21-17 at the half owing to the uncanny ability of C. Summerford, forward to locate the hoop. Summerford shot nine goals in the first half accounting for all but three of his teams points in the period. Pepper was the local flash throughout the entire contest.
His floor work and shooting was a feature of the evening.

Beginning the second half the local quintette tied matters with field goals by Pepper and Laymons. McAfee and Burns tightened the defense and Falk-ville was only able to maintain a scant lead the remainder of the way. C.
Summerford ran his total to twenty-four with three goals in the latter half. Parker and Dutton each counted the latter twice as the game was safe.

Pepper, Laymons and Hurst launched a strong offensive but Beasley and Dutton were on the job and a matter of time called the Central scoring to a halt. The final whistle blew after Laymons tossed a foul with the count 31-28.

Central meets Jefferson County
High tonight at eight o'clock.

The lineup follows:
Central: F. J. Summerford
Pepper, 15 F. J. Summerford
Laymons 11 F. J. Summerford
Hurst, C 2 Parker
Burns, G 5 Dutton
McAfee, G Beasley
Referee: Eggers.

intent to murder his wife, was transferred to the hospital for the insane
at Tuscaloosa today.

On testimony of a number of witnesses, Lang was adjudged insane
when he shot his wife's left arm so badly it had to be amputated. Mrs.
Lang was removed to her parents' home,

SCHOOL CHILDREN
REQUIRED TO TAKE
PHYSICAL 'EXAMS'

Board of Education to Hear Any Complaints
From the County

ATTORNEY DAVIS
SUBMITS OPINION

Copy of the Decision Is Received Here by Health Officer

Following the recent action of the Morgan County board of education, in passing a resolution relative to the legality of compelling school children in the public schools to submit to physical examinations as being given by the county health authorities,
Dr. H. C. McRee, and his assistants are proceeding to invoke the law against any who refuse to allow their children to be examined.

Dr. McRee recently was mailed a letter from Harwell Davis, state attorney general, in which that official ruled that the boards of education have legal authority to enforce physical examinations, to members of the county board of education, and the board has informed Dr. McRee to examine the children, and to appeal to the board if necessary.

Dr. John W. Abercrombie, state superintendent of education sent the decision of Attorney General Davis accompanied by the following letter:
Dr. J. C. McRee.

County Health Officer.
Albany, Ala.

Dear Dr. McRee:
In response to your request for advice as to what steps should be taken when school children refuse to submit to examination by county health officer in the discharge of his regular duties, I am enclosing copy of an opinion of Attorney General
Harwell G. Davis to Dr. S. W. Welch,
State Health Officer, under date of January 17, 1923 in which it is held that the state board of health has authority to enforce the laws relating to public health which I assume would include all regulations of the state health department.

It will also be noted from the opinion of the Attorney General that the state and county boards of education have authority to adopt regulations and enforce them.

I trust that you will have no further trouble when children and their parents or guardians become acquainted with the law.

Yours Very Truly,
John W. Abercrombie,
Superintendent.

DIXIE DURING THE WAR SUBJECT
OF LECTURE BY DR. S. A. STEELE

During his lecture Friday night at the First Methodist church, Dr. Samuel Steele aroused great enthusiasm
when the said apropos of the fight between the North and South, speaking for the Southern soldiers, "The Yankees did not whip up, we were ourselves out whipping the Yankees."

Dr. Steele stated when the cheers back. Dr. Steele said that when Memphis was taken and Island 10, a few years ago when he made the same statement to an audience of thousands
he received a demonstration.

The subject of the lecture was: "The war for the union."

Dr. Steele said a better name for that war would be "The War of the great misunderstanding." As a youth on a Mississippi farm a score or more miles out of Memphis to the south, Dr. Steele heard his father and the Methodist circuit rider all but "fall out," when the elder Steele declared if Lincoln was elected in 1860, the South would be defeated in the war following secession, while the minister said the war would not last more than 60 days.

Photographer Files Into Vesuvius Crater.

Umberto Romagnoli

Umberto Romagnoli, of the international Newsreel Corporation, is alive today, after one of the most daring feats in the annals of photography. With a pilot, he flew in a seaplane inside the crater of Mount Vesuvius, in Italy, remaining seven minutes. Natives reported the man dead, and it was not until Romagnoli reappeared in Naples that it was learned the flight was deliberately made. Although the fliers wore gas masks, Romagnoli became unconscious after leaving the crater, but not until he had made his pictures.

WINTER REVIVAL
TO BEGIN SUNDAY

The mid-winter revival at the Church of God will begin Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Rev. N. S. Duncan, of Indianapolis, Indiana, is the evangelist. The series of meetings will continue two weeks if not longer. The Sunday services will be at 11 a. m.
and 7:30 p. m. and the week day services 10 a. m. and 7:15 p. m. No services are to be held on Monday.

A good meeting is expected as there has been considerable preparation.
During the past week the singers have met every evening for practice. Old songs were practiced and new ones were learned. Some of these new songs were written last year. Cottage meetings have been held in different parts of the city and other special prayers have been offered for the meeting.

Mrs. Duncan accompanied her husband south. While here they will reside at the parsonage as guests of their old friends, R. and Mrs. Mack M. Caldwell.

Hurt by Explosion
of Carbide Plant

(Associated Press)
GADSDEN, Ala. Feb. 23—W. E.
Collins is believed to be dying in a Gadsden hospital, where he was removed after he had been badly burned
in an explosion of a carbide plant
in his home at Rock Springs, Ala., last night. His residence was destroyed by the fire which destroyed the explosion.

Improvements at Church Under Way

In a few weeks the large improvements undertaken at St. Paul's Lutheran church here will be completed, stated Rev. Karl Hoffman, the pastor, Saturday morning. Since the recent fire at the church destroyed
some of the church floor and one flue
it was decided to floor the church anew with hard wood, repaint the interior of the church, revarnish the pews, and put in altogether different kinds of flues, to those used prior to the fire.

St. Paul's church recently raised about $75 for the relief of undernourished children in Germany, Rev. Hoffman stated.

IN PROBE MONDAY

Senate Oil Committee Is
to Hear President
Coolidge's Aid

AGREES READILY
TO QUESTIONING

Senator Walsh Refuses
to State What Lines Inquiry Will Take

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Leading a renewed attack on Attorney General Daugherty today
in the senate, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, declared he was willing to help lay the foundation for impeachment proceedings to get Mr. Daugherty out of the cabinet.

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—C. Has-som Slomp, secretary of President Coolidge, agreed to appear before the Senate oil committee Monday.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana,
chief prosecutor in the oil scandal, called Mr. Slomp on the telephone and the secretary readily agreed to appear.

While Senator Walsh declined to indicate the subject matter on which Mr. Slomp would be questioned, it is understood the committee wishes to ask about the extent of any communication he had with government officials and others concerned regarding the oil inquiry, since the beginning of the startling disclosures a month ago.

The program of the committee thus far has been mapped only through Monday. The order in which witnesses will be called after that time will depend on the reports of the expert accountants, now examining the books of the stock brokerage firms in Washington, Cleveland and New York.

To Read Doherty Letter
Chairman Lenroot announced today
he would lay before the committee
the letter written by E. L. Doherty, and demanding that Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, be called to give the facts on which he based his recent charges in the Senate against Attorney General Daugherty.

When his attention was directed to the letter, Senator Wheeler said that of course he would appear before the committee if invited.

"This is merely an attempt by Doherty," he stated, "to drag a red herring across the trail of the Daugherty investigation. What the people want is an investigation of the attorney general himself. This is the main issue. After that is over they can investigate me all they want to."

Old Man Business has been very busy ever since the war doing away with what agitators did.

President Coolidge may not be, but some of his friends are good politicians.

It now appears the world was wrong, as usual, in thinking that John D. Rockefeller was a great oil man.

A CONSUMER'S COMBINE

In his recent message to the National Council of Farmers' Co-operative Marketing Associations, after approving co-operation in selling farm products, President Coolidge suggests there should also be a consumers' combine. Mr. Coolidge says there should be a close working relation between co-operative sellers and consumers, such an accomplishment he says is the "ideal toward which the larger co-operative movement of the country should aim."

Such a co-operation would help shorten the circuit between the farmers and the consumers. Until some better medium is than the "middle-men" between the farmers and the buyers of their products, it will remain.

Should the producers organizations become very strong, too strong, until the prices of agricultural products are enhanced in value beyond reason, the country would not be the gainer. Agricultural combinations could operate in restraint of trade. In case the consumers also have a buyers' organization, they could act as a check and a balance. In order to keep the markets fair, the time may come when President Coolidge's suggestion may be accepted and a consumers' combination may have an important place in American life.

DEPOSITORS AS WELL AS BANKS MUST BE RELIABLE

The belief has prevailed in many localities in years past and possibly still prevails with some, that it is allowable and even praiseworthy, to beat a corporation, especially if it is an incorporated bank.

It is not correct, and never was, to beat a company of individuals any more than it is right to cheat an individual.

A rather unique statement appears below from a private individual to a bank setting forth his obligations to the bank, with reference to the duty of others to banking institutions. The statement is addressed to an officer of the bank and is in part as follows:

You have published many advertisements about your obligations to me as a depositor. I think it is time for one of your customers to write an advertisement about his obligations to you, his bank.

As I see it, I owe you three things—and money (at the moment, thank the Lord) is not one of them.

1. I owe it to you, as well as to myself, to maintain a good business reputation. To you because I expect you to demand this of your other depositors. If you have business dealings with a customer I presume that because he is a customer, he pays his bills, has regard to the sanctity of a contract, and is otherwise dependable. I cannot expect you to uphold this standard on the part of others, unless I do my personal share in upholding it.

2. I owe it to you to maintain a balance on which you can make a profit. I expect you to maintain convenient offices, which mean high rents, high taxes and other expenses. I call on you for a variety of services, many of which were never thought of as a part of banking 10 years ago. You cannot meet these expenses and render these services unless you are making money. If you make no money on me, then I am riding on the back of your other depositors. I don't want others riding on my back. I expect, therefore, not to ride, but to walk and to carry my share of your load.

3. I give you an obligation to accept your decision cheerfully if you sometimes say "No." If you haven't the courage to say "No" many times a day, and stick to it, I don't want my money in your bank. I expect you to say "No" when you are invited to make speculative investments—because part of the money you invest is my money. I expect you to say "No" when you are asked to make questionable loans, or to pay too high a rate of interest, or to lend at too low a rate.

I want all the interest I can get; and all the accommodation I can get. But first of all I want to be dead sure that what money I have with you is absolutely safe. It can't be safe unless you are conservative. And any man or institution that is conservative must necessarily say "No" every day. If ever you say it to me, therefore, I owe it to you to believe that you are saying it because it is in the best interests of all your depositors of whom I am one.

A Train Of Thoughts For the Sabbath and Other Days

By J. E. Blair

Solitude has no charms for the busy, highly called, great personages of earth. Such would prefer to "dwell in the midst of alarms" than reign in solitude. But on the other hand, always "the busy, highly called and great personages of earth have been cradled in solitude. Just as the embryo of animal life, in the beginning, is hidden away; so the souls of the great at first have developed in loneliness and solitude. A few examples: Gideon, the hero of Sunday's Bible School lesson, grew up in an out-of-the-way place until he was called to step from the doors of his dusty threshing barn into a life so active and great, that Gideon is one of the immortals. Joshua, the slave-born boy, lived mostly alone until he was called to lead Israel's hosts beyond the Jordan. Moses was always alone, despite his stay in a proud Egyptian court, until God called him at the burning bush. Joseph, unwanted by his jealous brethren, and a stranger in a strange land, grew so mightily in spirit that he ruled the Egyptian empire for his king. Jacob's birthright privileges and his rich surroundings availed him nothing; but when he became alone and an outcast, by God's help he began the ascent of the ladder on which angels ascended and descended. Abraham's free life on the plains helped him to hear the voice of the Spirit, and to make the supreme sacrifice—the surrender of the "Child of Promise" to God, as he understood things. Paul's education at the feet of Gamaliel was only a small factor in his spiritual life; but from the desert Paul emerged to become Christ's greatest earthly messenger. One other illustration: His father's house and the wealth at his disposal did not amount to much in the life of the Prodigal Son, but in the solitude of a filthy pig pen he "came to himself." The Prodigal may have "fallen away" for aught we know. Others have backslidden after coming to themselves amid disgrace and in loneliness. For instance, David was more lovable and greater as the lone and forgotten shepherd boy than when he became a mighty king. Solomon was great when in the night watches he chose wisdom; but was he great as a king and the possessor of many wives? True, solitude is a good cradle for greatness; but good environment never made a good person any more than a good shell and plenty of food and sunshine will make a game cock. Something else—a thousand "somethings"—must happen to us—if we react properly—before we become somebodies. Unless one particular thing happens to us, namely, a touch and an inspiration from God, when we enter the crowded arena of life in some measure it will be said of us—(that old country expression)—"They are all right until you get them in a crowd." The one person of earth, who was right in solitude, right when the Jerusalem crowds wished to crown Him, and right later when the mob cried: "Crucify Him," is the only Person who can supply the thousand things that will enable us to meet life's duties—"on the world's broad field of battle," and to react them as we should. In a word, it is absolutely necessary to have God's view point and God's Spirit. "And Daniel was chosen . . . because of the SPIRIT that was in him."

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanné Price

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Is this the influence of Wagner and Puccini? Or to H. Kahn is as well known as a patron of music as he is as a banker, and is the chief supporter of the Metropolitan Opera company. His son, Roger Wolff Kahn, also has musical inclinations, it seems. He has just organized and financed a jazz orchestra, which is shortly to have a vaudeville tryout. He quits his father's name from its title and calls it the Roger Wolff orchestra, but its snappy and hilarious rehearsals have been held in the parental home on Fifth avenue. It hasn't as yet been learned whether young Roger will play in the orchestra himself, but it is known that he is an expert with the saxophone. As he isn't quite seventeen, the jazz devotion may be merely a matter of age, but Roger insists not.

With all the modern discoveries of ancient civilization and the importance given to present day explorations, Egypt and Carthage, Mt. Everest and the North Pole, we can't help realizing how far ancient kingdoms would have flung if our fore fathers had possessed all the little helps we use today in merely going over their work. Dr. Carter has oxygen-supplying devices which permit him to work in Luxor tombs, rendered almost perfect vacuums in order to take out the treasures unimpaired. The Far North will be surveyed from the mighty Shenandoah by a large crew at almost any height it may choose in comparative warmth and safety. The news of the discoveries is carried instantly to every corner of an applauding world. The storms of the desert do not prevail against the cinema machine. Roy Chapman Andrews who was the leader of the third Asiatic expedition which conducted explorations in Mongolia and the Gobi desert under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural history, has written back how his light little Corona held up under the havoc of dust storms in China and kept the Museum steadily advised by his detailed journal. We may justly boast of modern achievement, but the ancients of old can turn in their dusty graves and realize that adventure is kept de luxe nowadays.

How many inches in five years? That question is disturbing our courts and our families. Five years is the age at which our subway companies have ordered that a child must have a ticket in order to ride on their trains. The ruling opened the way to considerable controversy at the ticket windows, and very large boys and

This beautiful, new Red Star burns common kerosene, gasoline or distillate. But right there all similarity to the conventional oil stove ends.

Two things especially delight the women who see it. One is the unusual beauty of the stove. Its smooth, flowing, stream line, entirely free from ugly bolts and projections, combined with the sanitary white porcelain and black enamel finish, rivals even the most modern gas range. Another is the absence of wicks or wick substitutes. This beautiful Red Star has patented ALL-METAL burners. They burn oil, but they cook with clean, GAS HEAT.

Flushing Bound, Madge Hoped She Was Unobserved.

I DO not think I ever slept so soundly as I did in the hotel at Riverside, following our drive through the fog. I did not realize how the strain of being at the wheel had fatigued me until I literally fell into bed without knowing whether my head touched the pillow or not.

We had been fortunate enough to secure communicating rooms, the one which the children occupied lying between mine and that of the Brathwaites. But whether the children slept or were restless mattered nothing to me. I lay drugged with slumber until the grasp of a hand on my shoulder, gently shaking me, brought me bolt upright in unreasoning panic.

"Hush!" Harriet said smiling at me. "Don't wake the children yet. But Edwin said you wished to leave as early as possible, so I thought I'd rouse you."

"Thank you," I stammered. "I believe I would have slept until noon if you hadn't awakened me."

"You probably needed to do that very thing," she replied compassionately. "but—"

"Oh! we must get started right away," I said, scrambling out of bed. Harriet had moved over to the open window and put it down as soon as she had roused me, and the shade pulled up revealed a clear dawn.

"Where are those vacuum bottles?" she asked.

"Right there," I pointed to a table at the other end of the room. "I emptied them and rinsed them as well as I could last night, but they need cleansing in plenty of hot water."

Again on the Road.

Edwin is all dressed, ready to go out and get hot coffee for us and warm milk for the youngsters. Harriet returned, "and he can have them cleaned at the restaurant—there is one here, I suppose. That was something he wished me to ask you."

"Oh, yes, a very good one," I paused in my rapid dressing to give her minute directions for the finding of the restaurant, and with the vacuum bottles in her hands she hurried out of the room.

"Don't show these children in any public dining room—indeed, in any place more than you can help until you have them safe on board ship." This was Lillian's emphatic parting admonition, and we were heading it strictly. By the time Edwin returned with the hot coffee and milk, Harriet and I, working swiftly, had assisted the children with their dressing, and after a hurried but satisfactory breakfast from the remnants of Katie's lunch, I went to the garage nearby where I had left the car and brought it to the door. Harriet and the children, the latter wide-eyed and excited, but obediently quiet, awaited us.

There were but two or three automobiles in the streets, all of them appearing to belong to the section, but I scanned each one searchingly and nervously, and was glad indeed when we finally got under way, and speeding down the village street, turned into the middle island road, with no sign of activity from any one of the waiting cars.

Taking the Shortest Way.

"This road is neither so good nor so picturesque as the north side route," I explained regretfully. "but it is a much shorter connection to the Flushing road. I should have liked to have shown you some of the picturesque towns of the north side, but we shall come out at Huntington, and from there on the road winds through fairland a good deal of the way."

"Oh, what do we care for scenery?" Harriet exclaimed impatiently. "I know that I for one won't have a minute to think of it. The shortest road is the thing."

"And that's what we have before us," I repeated cheerily, repressing the impulse to a tart answer to which her impatience tempted me. But I reflected that she was under even a greater strain than I, and I resolved that no matter what the provocation I would keep my peace undisturbed.

But despite her protests, I was amused to discover that she was not surprised to find the austere beauty of the winter woods silhouetted against water and sky when after a trip through the dreary, oaked desert of the middle island we came out upon the stretches of the north shore roads between Huntington and Flushing. Loveliest of regions in Spring, Summer and Autumn, it has its own peculiar charm for the beauty lover even in Winter, with the trees stark and bare. I was not surprised to hear my delicate meter in-law catch her breath as we came out upon a peculiarly exquisite bit, and say:

"You are right, Margaret. This is wonderful."

YOUR HEALTH

Transplantation of Glands Not Yet a Successful Process

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MUCH is being written these days about glands, their effect on personality and on health and vigor. Most of the things said are extravagant, impossible and ridiculous nonsense.

From earliest times men have sought to evade death. Ponce de Leon came to America seeking the fountain of youth. Marie Corelli made one of her characters discover it.

But in spite of all endeavor, in certain age groups death is just as triumphant as ever. There is no royal road to longevity. Medicine and surgery have done and are doing much, but do not imagine for a moment that medicine or a surgical operation will give you back your lost or wasted youth.

I wish I could endorse all I have seen and heard, but I can't do it. It just isn't true and that's all there is to it.

We have heard about transplanting glands. They can be transplanted but they will not work after they are transplanted.

To have a successful removal of an organ from one man or one animal to another man or animal, involves a lot of things. You see, something more is needed than merely to have the organ live. It must be made to function, or all the pain, trouble and expense have been in vain.

To have an organ function, it must have the usual blood supply. The blood vessels must be intact so that the essential portions may receive an unimpeded supply of the vital fluid.

To have an organ function, it must have its normal nerve supply. Nerve impulses are needed to excite and control the operation of the organ.

To remove an organ like a gland from the blood vessels and nerves are severed. There are no corresponding vessels and nerves to which the severed structure of the transplanted organ can be attached. Consequently the essential blood and nerve forces are not provided and the organ cannot function.

Of course, the transplanted organ may contain certain elements already created. These may be absorbed by the host and accomplish a temporary relief, but very shortly, certainly if not at once, the "revivified" individual will be his same old self.

While we live in a wonderful age our age of modern invention and discovery, progress has been largely in things entirely aside from the processes of life and longevity. We must take with a grain of salt all extravagant promises to extend the span of life. Such systems are like "get rich quick" schemes in finance. They must be viewed with suspicion and actual distrust.

Every child has the right to be taught how to live. Facilities for his physical care are within reach. If his teeth, eyes, tonsils, intestinal tract, lungs, kidneys, liver and heart are given a fair chance, he will need in his advanced age no borrowed glands or other imported organs to keep him alive and vigorous beyond the present expectancy of life.

ODD FACTS

Many of the quaint old English customs of Christmas originated centuries ago, and are known by little more than name to-day. It was King Henry II, who introduced the elaborate Christmas dinner, which was held at midday in olden times on account of poor illumination. Even palaces in these days were lit with very inferior tallow candles. A great event in the history of the world was observed in which wood was burnt. King Henry gave a great feast, and himself carried in the board's head, which he placed before him as a great honor. This custom which was observed until Queen Victoria's reign. As people depended entirely upon wood for their fuel, in the olden times, the bringing in of the Yule log was considered a great event. It was drawn in triumph from its resting place in the forest by servants dressed in fantastic costumes, and often the young heir of the house would ride upon it as if it were a great horse. Tall candles were lit, and the minstrels broke into a Yule song.

Of our chief spices, pepper is produced chiefly in the Malay Peninsula, cinnamon in Ceylon, ginger in South America, Western Africa and China; cloves in Zanzibar and vanilla in the islands of the Indian Ocean.

Few Londoners, it is declared, can trace a London ancestry of any length. Similarly, very few New Yorkers to-day can lay claim to a family tree whose roots have been nourished in metropolitan soil.

Tomorrow's

HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY,

FEBRUARY 24-25.

Sunday's astrological chart points to pleasant and profitable conditions, relating to the church and to charitable affairs, thriving under a benevolent Jupiter. Mars and Saturn also contribute to the propitious reign.

Those whose birthday it is may expect an active year, with stable progress and fortunate financial developments. A child born on this day should be industrious, energetic and ambitious and should succeed in its undertakings.

Monday's horoscope is favorable despite some anxieties and postponements. Those in the employment of others have excellent prospects, and all should find some increase in business activities. There may be some important movement in affairs of the heart, possibly an abrupt turn of circumstances.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to an active and generally fortunate year in spite of some anxieties and postponements. Those in the employment of others should prosper and those of a romantic turn of mind may have interesting experiences. A child born on this day will be successful in its undertakings and will do well in the employment of others.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

Kitchen Pottery

Is Once More to Be Seen in Stores

By WANDA BARTON

MANY of us who did not have occasion to buy kitchen pottery do not realize how nearly it disappeared from our shops during the war.

All this is changed now. Big cake mixing-bowls, for instance, appear in yellow pottery with line trimming in different colors. The bowl de luxe has dairy scenes in colors on the sides. These may be a bit expensive, but they are tempting to the woman who loves pretty things for her kitchen.

Nested bowls, or "cuppings," as they are called, come in Quaker gray pottery with white and also blue line decoration. There are six to a nest and they come in the sizes we most need. Then there are yellow bowls with white and brown line decorations. These come three, four and six to the nest. There is also the white and blue pottery—some are round and others are octagonal.

Brown glazed pottery has returned not in nested bowls, but in a variety of ramin shapes, with handles and without, scalloped around the edges and plain. Pie-plates, puddling-dishes and other baking dishes of this ware are all fascinating in an old-fashioned kitchen. They are a modern version of our grandmother's pipkins, and no appreciable difference in the world ever tasted like the sauce that was cooked in pipkins.

Brittany folk are sending us some of their quaint Quimper ware—odd, fine yellow pottery with painted figures and scenes in color for decoration. These are very attractive in coloring and reasonable in price. The teapot, jugs and cups are artistically shaped and the ware is not heavy to handle.

There are charming dinner sets in Doulton ware. There is a design, for instance, with an odd mottled old-blue ground decorated with brilliantly colored parrots. The panels are divided with a filigree of black picked out with flecks of gold. The shapes of cup and plate are good and the salad bowl is a joy. This ware is never cheap, but it is always worth owning. Due to modern demand, this particular style is in "open" stock in most stores, so all breakages can be replaced.

Those who favor the one-dish dinner are buying good sectional dinner sets. These come in white with a line of color on the edges and in the different blue patterns. There is a large circular depression for the meat, one for potatoes, and one other for vegetables. Buyers usually take one for each member of the family and two or three for extra use.

For those who like them, there are odd little pieces, sets having the one bowl-shaped dish for the celery and six tiny bowl-shaped dishes for the salt needed. These are all right for the informal table but if there are several courses in the meal, the celery is usually put on the butter-plate. All kinds of china are represented in celery sets and most any dinner service may be matched.

WINIFRED BLACK TELLS US ABOUT The Girl Who Is Bashful

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

DO write and tell what you think about bashful girls, and if you can think of anything encouraging to say about us, for I am one, say it." So writes Isabel, and she has asked a hard question.

In the first place, I thought there were no more bashful girls, and I am sure they are out of fashion and have been these last few years. But I would really like to see one and make observations to see how they compare with the very unbashful ones of the day.

I saw a sweet, modest girl, yesterday, as fresh as one of the old-fashioned moss roses, but with all of her retiring manners she could not be called bashful. She was just on the edge of bashful, though, and had a lovely color in her face when strangers spoke to her.

Don't Think of Yourself

There is one thing about bashfulness, Isabel, it wears off as the world grows more like a friend, and you will not always suffer from the "waves of bashfulness" which you say almost roll over you when you meet strangers.

You must learn not to think much about yourself, Isabel. Put your thoughts more upon the people around you and try to put them at ease, for it is said that the ill at ease create the same feelings in others.

Consciousness of self makes many a girl do and say the wrong things and bashfulness often makes one act anything but self-observing. Thinking of others, as a habit, will soon get you out of the rut of self, and that will cure you of shyness.

Anyway, I do not see any great objections to a bashful girl or two in these days of so much self-assurance. If you can keep enough of your shyness to be well and truly sure that you do not forget your manners, letting everyone speak before you and doing nothing to offend, you will be sure to make friends. And friends have a great deal to do with giving us the real joy of living.

The true friend will soon give you the sense of well being. You need not be always trying to please, but to be pleased is a great pass.

Winifred Black

port to favor. One likes to see a happy girl, full of kindness and overflowing with good will. If you give yourself any chance at all you will soon find yourself surmounting the "waves of bashfulness."

And of one thing I am sure. You will not join the rabble of loud-mouthed girls and be a menace to peace and quiet or happiness when you should be in tune with the society you desire to make your own.

There Are Worse Traits

There are worse traits than shyness, you may be sure. Look up and make the good old world your place of happiness and, best of all, of the happiness of those you most care for. There is but one royal road to happiness and that is to make the happiness of others.

Self-consciousness will soon fall away from the girl who really tries to give happiness to her family and friends. So, Isabel, I hope you will shake off the nervousness which makes you unhappy and go on your way rejoicing.

A Double Band of Fluffy Ostrich Plumes Uniquely Used.

"I DO have to think hard and fast to keep my debutante clients happy," said Madame, smoothing a worried forehead with her slender finger-tips.

Miss Phillip, one of the designers, was submitting some original designs.

I was seated nearby on a low stool, trying to make myself useful by offering a suggestion now and then.

"Of course they must all be dressed very differently," Madame continued. "And they come so often and want many frocks at a time."

"This does seem to be a particularly gay season, judging from the number of things we have done for the younger clients," Miss Phillip agreed.

"There are more debutante clients than ever before," Madame said.

"That's not because the season has brought out any more," I suggested. "But merely because most all of the debutantes are out of school and come to Madame."

Madame smiled appreciatively. "I'd think you were just trying to be nice, except that I know most of what you say is true," she replied.

"But reflecting on our success isn't helping us pick out this frock for Miss Demarest," she added, shaking her head in an effort to plunge back into the business of the moment.

"Well, what's the matter with your latest design, Madame?" Miss Phillip asked.

"It is of course, more unusual than my latest one," she added with a smile. "Somehow, he matter how hard we apprentice designers work, we never quite compete with you," continued Miss Phillip.

Madame searched in her portfolio for the sketch in question.

"It is wonderfully suited to Miss Demarest's type," she said, holding it up.

"It's just about the snappiest thing I ever hope to see," I declared enthusiastically after one look at the sketch.

I saw a white frock, satin I could tell from the touches of thick white paint Madame had dabbed here and there. It was simple except for a circular flounce that was deeper at the right side, and where the flounce joined the skirt proper there was a double band of fluffy ostrich feathers, black on top and white beneath.

"She'll be delighted with black and white," Madame said. "She's been teasing me for something like this all season and I've been insisting that she stick to brilliant colors instead."

"Then it's decided," she added. "Run and phone Miss Demarest to come in when she can," she told me. "Tell her we have a surprise."

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of twenty. My old sweetheart is going to get married. How can I prevent it? I love him dearly. He is going to marry a girl from out-of-town.

LONESOME.

LONESOME: What a selfish and foolish wish my dear. Send the young man hearty and sincere congratulations and have a happy time with your other friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl eighteen years old. I have been going with a young man for two years. He is much older than I. He says that he loves me and I also love him. He wants to marry me, but he does not want to ask my parents. He wants me to ask them. Should I ask them or should he? Do you think he loves me when he does not want to ask them? My parents do not object to my going with him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and I am in love with a young man who is four years my senior. He used to go with me, but sometimes he would break the dates he made with me. Then I stopped speaking to him. Now I would like to renew his friendship. Please tell me how I can do this.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Is it improper to call at a young man's place of business if he asks you to? How late should a girl of seventeen return home from a party or dance? I would like to know as I have no one else to advise me.

DELORES.

DELORES: It is wise not to pay social calls in an office or other place of business even though you are invited to do so.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am eighteen years old and I am in love with a young man two years my senior. I am not sure whether he loves me although he continually plans for our future. How am I to find out whether he really loves me? Should I consider myself engaged to him? He has never really "proposed" to me but last night he said he was going to get me a ring.

DELORES: It is wise not to pay social calls in an office or other place of business even though you are invited to do so.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am eighteen years old and I am in love with a young man two years my senior. I am not sure whether he loves me although he continually plans for our future. How am I to find out whether he really loves me? Should I consider myself engaged to him? He has never really "proposed" to me but last night he said he was going to get me a ring.

What the Press Agents Say

Where will the "locations" for big feature productions of the future be found?

With the tendency of film production running toward the elaborate unusual pictures that require the building of really stupendous settings, location hunters for Los Angeles producers have found that the big open spaces once so common in and about the city are becoming alarmingly few.

The location question has been raised through the difficulties that presented themselves during the filming of B. P. Schulberg's pictureization of "The Virginian" which required a faithful reproduction of the town of Casper, Wyoming, just as it looked when Owen Wister first visited it to write his epic of the west.

Finding a spot near the city big enough to permit the building of the picturesque town was itself a task. But a conscientious effort to actually reproduce the atmosphere created by Wister called for rolling country that was absolutely free from dwelling or even shrubbery.

Los Angeles real estate boosters, however, had made this practically impossible. Open spaces that are not usually being converted into subdivisions are so nearly ready for such improvements that no real estate man would permit it to revert to days of "The Virginian" for even a short time. Six weeks' search throughout Southern California finally revealed just the variety of site needed on the outskirts of the town of Alhambra. A part of a tract of two hundred and forty acres of clear, rolling land was acquired for a period of one year, during which the sub-divisor is ruled off of the horizon and Casper, as Owen Wister first saw it, will live again.

The longest street built on it is one thousand feet from end to end. It includes such luxurious as two wide open saloons, rooming houses and livery stables of a variety that could never house an automobile.

Director Tom Forman has begun shooting his exterior scenes on the street with a complete population of cowboys, bar tenders, gamblers and other essentials of a Western town. "This has solved the 'location' problem for us temporarily but there is no denying that it is getting to be a serious one," said B. P. Schulberg, who is producing Preferred Pictures. "Producing pictures far from studios means portable generators and other costly paraphernalia. Even a few miles out from Los Angeles, with the time consumed in transportation of large numbers of players, and other incidentals, adds materially to the cost of a production."

"The Virginian" will be at the Princess theater Monday and Tuesday with Kenneth Harlan in the title role.

Mrs. W. P. REEVES HOSTESS AT BEAUTIFUL COLONIAL TEA.

Mrs. W. P. Reeves was hostess Friday afternoon, entertaining at one of the prettiest socials of the season, an elaborate Colonial tea, complimenting Circle No. 3 of Central Baptist church of which she is chairman. The house was decorated in a most artistic manner, with a profusion of flags, cut flowers and ferns. Red tapers burning in crystal holders cast a soft glow over the rooms adding great charm to the scene. The center table in the living room, featured the proverbial cherry tree with luscious cherries peeping out from the foliage, and at its base, the decorative "hatchet." The tea table was lovely with its lace cover over red foundation, and having as a center motif a beautiful goddess of liberty on a white pedestal, decorated with tiny flags, holding in her right hand the torch of liberty and in her left, the stars and stripes. Surrounding the goddess of liberty, were thirteen crystal candle sticks in which burned white tapers, symbolical of the original thirteen colonies. Tea was poured by Mrs. Kimball Jones and Miss Sara Webb, both charming in Colonial costumes. Serving tea, was a bevy of pretty Colonial maids, Misses Lorena Ashford, Louise Matthews, Anna Tidwell, Mary Thornhill. Mr. and Mrs. Reeves, as General and Lady Washington, stood in the reception hall to receive their guests, while little W. P. Reeves, Jr., a miniature Colonial gentleman stood at the door with a silver basket to receive the silver offering. The register was presided over by Miss Laura Martin, in Colonial dress, while Mrs. E. L. Frazier and Mrs. J. F. Browne received at the door. Mrs. E. M. Espy presented the guests to the hosts and hostess, while Mrs. E. D. Whitman conducted them to the living room and Mrs. Mason Crow, as chairman, presented an interesting program for the entertainment of the guests.

For the opening number, Mrs. A. L. Hanson appeared as Columbia, and thrilled her audience with "Star Spangled Banner," following this Miss Ruth Collins gave a delightful piano solo, and again Mrs. Hanson's voice was heard in "The Last Rose of Summer." Following this number, Mrs. E. M. Espy gave several short readings from the pen of Howard Weeden, portraying the delightful atmosphere customs and manners of the grand old ante bellum days. Miss Rosalie Norman then sang sweetly, "Love's Old Sweet Song" after which, all the Colonial dames gathered at the piano and lead "America" in which the guests joined. During the afternoon more than a hundred women called. This tea was a lovely affair and a splendid silver offering was made to Circle Number 3. Mrs. Wadlow had charge of the refreshments and was assisted by Mrs. W. P. Carter, Mrs. Lula Dillehay, and Mrs. Ben Wright. The artistic decorations for the tea were entirely in the hands of the decoration committee, Mrs. J. F. Browne, Mrs. A. L. Frazier, Mrs. Mason Crow, and Mrs. E. M. Espy.

JUNIOR Y. W. A. OF CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH ENTERTAINED Tuesday evening at the Baptist parsonage the atmosphere of Colonial days permeated the house, as young Colonial Dames made merry with their escorts, as guests of George and Martha Washington, when Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Reeves entertained for the Junior Y. W. A. of Central Baptist church, with a pretty Washington party. In the beautiful setting which had been made for the Colonial tea given by Mrs. Reeves in the afternoon, the young ladies in their attractive Colonial dress, entertained their friends in the characteristic manner of the belles of those courtly days. Many games and contests were indulged in, and an interesting program of music and songs was presented. At the close of the evening, an ice course was served in which the patriotic idea was featured.

Miss Beatrice Sivley who had her tonsils and adenoids removed on Friday is resting well.

Miss Birdie Boetler is ill at her home on Third avenue West.

Miss Birdie Boetler is ill at her home on Third avenue West.

B. Y. P. U. SOCIAL. A social was enjoyed by the members of the B. Y. P. U. of the Decatur Baptist church on Friday evening at the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fussell to which each member invited a guest.

Games were played under the supervision of their leader, Mrs. J. H. Mayes and at a late hour refreshments were served.

Miss Young, of Trinity is visiting Mrs. Virginia Graham at her home on Grant street.

Mrs. H. O. Cline of Little Rock, Ark., is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Broadway.

GEORGE WASHINGTON TEA. The girls of the Christian church gave a beautiful tea at the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. McGwier on Friday from 3 to 5 p. m.

The interior of the home was effective with the national decorations and the colors, red white and blue were carried out in detail. The dining table, which was presided over by Misses Katherine Smith and Christine Worley both of whom were pretty in their Martha Washington costumes, was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a plaque on which was set a silver vase of cut flowers. The sandwiches and tea were served from silver pots and trays by Misses Velva Holland and Virginia Thomas.

COLONIAL TEA. The James Duncan Memorial Circle of the First Methodist Church were hostesses at a Colonial Tea on Friday afternoon, George Washington's birthday, at the home of Mrs. G. D. Williamson. The beauty of this home was enhanced by the display of bright flowers, those used in the dining room being yellow jonquils and white narcissus tied with yellow tulle and this yellow and white color scheme was further emphasized with the burning yellow tapers in crystal holders. A number of silver baskets of pink carnations were placed around the drawing room and potted plants and ferns were used in the reception room.

Those calling during the afternoon were met at the door by Mrs. William Houston and Mrs. Russell Green, and they were then ushered into the drawing room by Mrs. Rufus Pearson and Mrs. R. G. Sherrill. A splendid program was rendered throughout the afternoon hours from 3 to 5 p. m. In this room and several numbers were given by the following: readings, Marie Ballas, recitations, Jane Wade; solos by Mrs. H. R. Summer; readings, Miss Agnes Cassels; piano solos Miss Elizabeth Wallace; group of songs, Mrs. Joe Petey; readings, Miss Lula Garnett; vocal selections by Mrs. A. T. Hanson; the soloists were accompanied by Miss Lucille Bailey and Mrs. A. J. Harris. Most of these were usually appropriate for the day and probably the two most enjoyable numbers were the recitations by little Jane Wade and Marie Ballas, both of whom are young but talented readers.

Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. William Moseley invited the guests into the dining room where Mrs. Thomas Petey, Miss Elizabeth Houston and Mrs. W. S. Dickinson served sandwiches and tea. Mrs. Charles Grayson presided at the tea table.

GEORGE WASHINGTON PARTY FOR VISITOR. Mrs. F. D. Peebles complimented her little guest, Miss Stuart Peebles, of Mooresville, with a lovely George Washington party on Friday afternoon at her apartment on Johnson.

The little guests were blindfolded and then told to pin a hatchet on the cherry tree placed at one end of the room and Mary Elizabeth George received the prize, a red box of candy, while Jane Davis was awarded the booby, a picture book. The honoree received a red box of candy as a memento.

Red and white ice cream and cakes were served to the little guests as follows: Gwendolyn and Anna Belle Reams, Annie Joe McKee, Dolly Greer, Elizabeth Humphrey, Jane and Marjory Davis, Mary Elizabeth George, Christine Hamilton, Marjory Phinizy, Frank Reagan King, and Leroy McEntire, Jr.

Every day seems to add to the number of people who think the poorest way to get money is to earn it.

Most of the planks in the platform of present day political parties seem to be made of very flexible material. If she says she has never been kissed, grab her. Any girl who is willing to forget the past will make an agreeable wife.

Mrs. Amos Tash says, if these bending over exercises do a woman any good, she ought to be right healthy after she devotes her life to picking up things after a husband.

Springfield, (Mass.) Union "These talking machines at $59.95" advertise a Chicago music house, "break all records." After listening to some records one simply can't shake off the conviction that there can not be too many such machines in constant use.

Sometimes a man has a hard time concealing the fact that he is glad to get rid of you when he says "good-bye to you."

Funny things, the laws of this country. Although prize fights are allowed, a federal law prohibits interstate transportation of films; but bull fights are not sanctioned anywhere in the country, yet it is perfectly legitimate to show movies of them. How come?

Girls

There are girls who have entrancing blue eyes.

There are girls who have pretty smiles.

There are girls who bake delicious lemon meringue pies.

While others have Parisian style. There are girls who look darn cute in knickers.

There are girls who shake a wicked knee.

But the girl who takes the Peacock's whiskers,

Is the girl of old, you see?

Statistics show that every rich uncle in the United States has a baby named after him.

Nothing spoils the looks of a pretty girl more than a pair of run-down heels.

We like to tell both sides of the story. One woman patron of the telephone exchange got an answer to her signal so quick that she forgot the number that she wanted to call and nearly swallowed her gum.

Don't cry over spilt milk, give the cat a chance.

The hardest circle to square, is the political ring.

Slick city feller—See that hill over there? Well, it's all bluff.

Just as slick farmer—See that cow over there? Well, it's all bull.

Eventually—Why Not Now? (North Judson, Ind. News)

The Odd Fellows sell their lots in their cemetery as low as $10, but the price will be raised soon.

What does it profit a man to be a star and have to stick to the dipper and milky way.

The nearest approach to perpetual motion is a man hunting a drink.

Lion of Lucerne.

The Lion of Lucerne is a large piece of sculpture at Lucerne, Switzerland, hewn out of the sandstone in the side of the cliff. It represents a colossal lion, transfixed with spear and dying, but still endeavoring to protect with its paw the Bourdon fleur-de-lis. This monument was designed by Thorwaldsen and was dedicated in 1821 to the officers and soldiers of the ill-fated Swiss Guard—nearly 800 in number—who were slain August 10, 1792 while defending the palace of the Tuilleries from the attack of the mob.

Formation of Coal.

The general theory regarding the formation of coal is that it results from the decomposition of vegetation in swamps under tremendous pressure at a high temperature. The first state is peat; second, lignite; third, bituminous; fourth, anthracite, and the final state is graphite.

Well, isn't He!

MOVING TO THE FAR WEST IN '49 AND NOW

In pioneer days furniture and family crossed the continent in a Prairie Schooner; now the family travels by sea or rail, and the furniture by sea in a van which is loaded at your home and is not unloaded until it reaches your new home. Picture at top shows van being hoisted aboard a Panama-Pacific liner, shown in lower left.

IN these days of sending letters by airplane, elimination of space seems commonplace. Yet there are practical developments in transportation that are quite as much worth while to the ordinary citizen.

For example, there has been a recent decided improvement in the method of moving household goods long distances. In the good old days of the pioneers, of which everybody reads with sentimental interest, the settler bound for California was lucky if he could find space on his prairie schooner for his wife's favorite bureau and rocking chair, and luckier still after six months if they arrived intact at the end of a rail, canal-boat and river steamboat journey, followed by the 1500-mile trek of his ox team across plains, mountains and deserts.

Now it is possible to ship household goods from your home in the east to your new home on the west coast without disturbing them on the way. They are put into a van at your old home and not taken out of the van until it reaches your new one. The van is taken to a ship on a truck, and checked as baggage. Thus it is literally possible for the traveler of today to check the kitchen stove when he starts for the Golden West. Danger from breakage is thus eliminated, and the goods reach their destination in about a fortnight.

This novelty in the transportation of household goods, first tried in a small way on transatlantic trips, was introduced in east and west transportation by the Panama Pacific Line, which recently opened a service between New York and California ports with a fleet of large ocean steamships. The vans make a sea voyage of more than 5,000 miles, going via the Panama Canal. After being unloaded at their destination they are shipped back to New York.

WHY FRONT WHEELS WOBBLE

"Did you ever notice how the front wheels of some automobiles wobble in unison on an uneven pavement?" says A. G. Zeller, president of the Michigan State Automobile school, Detroit.

"This wobble is a most unpleasant thing for the driver who frequently is at a loss to understand what causes it. Frequently it will be found that where there is excessive wobbling of the two front wheels, the steering wheels shows considerable back lash or lost motion. The reason for this lost motion may lie in the steering gear itself but more often its source will be located between the steering gear jackshaft and the lever that attaches to it. In the modern automobile it is usually found necessary to replace his lever to remedy this trouble.

"Or, the play may be located in the pit and socket joints at the ends of the drag link or steering gear connecting rod. Usually there is some means of adjustment provided here. Should there be no method of adjustment it will be necessary to replace the parts.

"Occasionally front wheel wobble does not come from play in the steering assembly, but is caused by loss of caster effect in the front axle. Most cars have the front axle tilted, lower side to front, top side to rear to bring the king pins in the steering knuckles to a slight angle from the vertical. The object is to put the point of contact between wheel and ground slightly behind the center line of the pivot pin.

"Springs that have lost their resiliency or springs weakened by broken leaves will not hold the front axle in the correct position and the result may be wheel wobble. The remedy in this case is new front springs."

Lizard Skin Shoes.

Shoes made of python and lizard skins, which are now popular among women of wealth and fashion, are exceedingly costly. One reason is that to make a pair of lizard shoes—with straps—requires a vast amount of labor, since it is often necessary to examine from forty to fifty skins in order to get two which will match up well.

Cattle Thresh Wheat in Corsica.

Grain is threshed from the heads of wheat by hoofs of cattle in Corsica, and a sieve then used to separate the food from the chaff.

Pine Tree Pollen.

Yellow rain in the Yukon territory and red snow in Greenland with a peculiar fine yellow deposit, are usually found to be caused by the pollen of pine trees growing miles distant. The pollen is caught by the winds, carried away and then dropped. The red snow is "made" by wind-blown deposits of minute vegetable organisms, bits of seaweed which contain red spots.

A Secret Hope.

Those who say that they never cross a bridge until they come to it are secretly hoping that the river will run dry and won't need a bridge.

Reason for Diplomats.

A reason why diplomats have to be so diplomatic is because foreign countries want to know things they oughtn't to.

Blows Own Horn.

When a man begins telling about the sacrifices he has made, it is because he has become tired of waiting for somebody else to tell about them.
